

Born into Hollywood as the proud grandson of the world's first film child star, Jackie Coogan, Keith has worked as a professional actor for over 43 years.

Starting at just six years old, he has performed in 49 television shows and 29 feature films.

He is a proud supporter of "The Coogan Act", and would love to see its enforcement expanded to all 50 States.

KEITH COOGAN

I love bringing characters off the page and onto the screen.

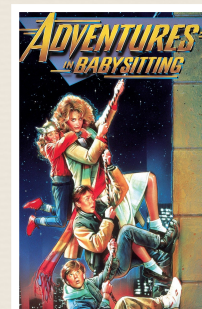

My goal is to create people that audiences can relate to, and laugh along with.

I take my comedy very seriously.

To be cast in a film is pure luck...

For that film to be loved, and remembered, now that's an entirely different level of luck...

(L) Kristen "Pinky" Coogan and Keith attending the Emmy Awards Broadcast. (R) Keith and Pinky supporting non-profit foundation event for CASA.

I married an incredibly social animal! My wife encouraged me to join the Television Academy in the Performer's Group, which allows us to attend countless screenings, Q&A sessions with filmmakers, and of course, the televised Emmy broadcast.

We also support non-profit causes such as CASA (providing legal advocacy for minors), Reading is Fundamental (promoting book ownership), Autism Now (support for impacted family members), A Minor Consideration (safety net for child performers past and present), and the Young Entertainer Awards (education grants for minor performers)

Keith's grandfather taught him early on how to live privately in public. Keith is never one to shy away from a press interview or screening to promote his present and past films. Below are a selection of articles featuring Keith in all of his adventures. Also, links to projects Keith is presently working on.
